Exhibit A

River Wranglers will continue Conserve the Carson River Workdays (CCRWD) throughout the Carson River watershed. We are thrilled to be back in the classroom and at the river with students. We plan to go into high school FFA and science classrooms to teach high school students the necessary information and skills so that they in turn can teach elementary students at the river in a combined workday. The high school students are trained on activities that teach children about our watershed, the importance of clean water, the water cycle, and non-point source pollution. At the river, they become “mentors” to the younger students, spending the day with them, leading them through the activities. In addition to the educational stations, we partner with conservation districts to include river work projects that the students complete together. After the workdays, elementary students are visited by River Wranglers staff to do a “wrap-up,” which reinforces the messages they learned at the river. We once again discuss non-point source pollution, the geography and features of the watershed, and the importance of the river and watershed to their own lives. We do a pre- and post-test with all involved students to track their increase in knowledge about the watershed and non-point source pollution to gauge the effectiveness of our programs.
